Long Bio

Tammy Jones is passionate about the art and craft of film. Her heart throbs for crafting stories that touch minds, hearts and awaken souls. However, it is the compassion inside her heart for the aspect of the human condition, and the world around her, is what fuels her fire. She mixes a cocktail of thrillers, crime, supernatural horror and inspirational genres when crafting her stories.

Tammy enjoys spending time in nature, capturing anything rustic, breathing new life into it and sharing her relics with the world. She is a military spouse, mother, grandmother and life-long learner who is impressed by the influence storytelling has on mankind, and the decisions they make in life.

Writing, directing and acting in theatre productions, she became a master at engaging an audience, while allowing them to see themselves through a different lens. She believes every human is on a hero's journey; therefore, the most precious part of a story is the lesson!

When Tammy is not honing her craft, you will find her using her talents to serve the community, cookouts with her family and friends, or in a cabin by a murky swamp, mixing ingredients to a perfect pot of gumbo to serve with stories that will inspire, comfort, challenge and change lives. Every sensible invention must have a purpose and every planned piece a destination. Learn more about this curious and proactive Writer at: <http://www.ReelCre8TivWriting.com>.
